

Shelton Quarles, former linebacker for the Tampa Bay Bucs and current Director of Pro Scouting for the Bucs, would like to get involved in supporting reading in the Tampa area this summer. Through his Impact Foundation he is offering, to the Hillsborough County school with the most minutes read this summer in the Read for the World Record program:

- A school visit to speak motivationally about his own experiences and the importance of reading
- Every child at the winning school will receive an autographed picture, bookmark, or wristband (TBD)
- One child from every classroom chosen to participate in a pizza party with Shelton

Go to: <http://www.scholastic.com/summer/> to register students for Scholastic's Summer Reading Challenge. Students can record all of the time that they spend reading this summer, no matter what it is that they are reading.
